Consumers Searching

Consumers Wanted: For an Employment Information Bridge to work it requires traffic to flow in both directions. If you are in a Consumer Directed Personal Assistance Program, you will eventually need to find a new Home Care Worker. And up to now you may have relied upon Friends, Family, an Agency or you may have chosen to put your own advertisement on the Internet (See the list of Internet resources on the PCA Employment Agency page of this newsletter). Therefore, to help you find the PCA Candidate of your choice, I urge you, to do everything you ordinarily do, to consider an Internet resource and to try www.ConsumerDirectedServices.com. Finally, if you try Consumer Directed Services, please spread the word. Tell your friends and associates about this FREE service.

DOL Appeals Decision in Lawsuit Brought by Home Care Industry

Update: The Department of Labor has filed an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit in the lawsuit brought by associations of home care companies challenging the Home Care Final Rule. The Court of Appeals has ordered that the appeal proceed on an expedited schedule, which calls for briefing to be completed by early April.

On December 22, 2014, U.S. District Court Judge Richard Leon issued an opinion and order in Home Care Association of America v. Weil, Civil Action No. 14-967 (D.D.C.), vacating the third party regulation amended by the Home Care Final Rule.

On January 14, 2015, Judge Leon issued an opinion and order vacating the Final Rule's revised definition of companionship services.

The Department strongly disagrees with both orders.

The Department issued the Home Care Final Rule to extend minimum wage and overtime protections to almost 2 million home care workers. The Department stands by the Final Rule. We believe the Rule is legally sound and is the right policy—both for those employees, whose demanding work merits these fundamental wage guarantees, and for recipients of services, who deserve a stable and professional workforce allowing them to remain in their homes and communities.

DOL's Home Care Final Rule on hold for now

By Susan Prince, JD,

Legal Editor for BLR's human resources and employment law publications.

January 28, 2015

The federal Department of Labor's (DOL) Home Care Final Rule, which was supposed to become effective on January 1, 2015, is on hold. The DOL is appealing two decisions by the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia that vacated the DOL's Home Care Final Rule.

The first decision, on December 22, 2014, vacated the third party regulation amended by the Home Care Final Rule. The second decision, on January 14, 2015, vacated the Final Rule's narrowed definition of companionship services.

Until a final decision is reached on appeal, third party employers can still benefit from the minimum wage and overtime exemptions under the companionship rule and the overtime exemption for live-in domestic workers.

Also, the narrowed definition of companionship services remains on hold. Direct home care and domestic service employees are currently not covered by the overtime and minimum wage requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act \(FLSA\). This will remain status quo until the court of appeals decides the case.

Provisions of the DOL's Rule halted

According to the DOL, the Final Rule would make these significant changes to the current rules:

1. The tasks that comprise exempt companionship services would be more narrowly defined.

2. The exemptions for companionship services and live-in domestic service employees could only be claimed by the individual, family, or household using the services rather than third party employers such as home health care agencies.
3. The Final Rule would revise the recordkeeping requirements for employers of live-in domestic service employees.

The DOL states that the Final Rule would make no changes to regulations concerning:

- What constitutes a private home, which is the type of residence in which domestic service occurs
- Whether an employment relationship exists
- Whether an employee is jointly employed by two or more employers
- What constitutes compensable hours worked

Direct care workers. The vacated rule states that direct care workers employed by agencies and other third-party employers would be entitled to receive minimum wage and overtime. Direct care workers include companions, certified nursing assistants, home health aides, personal care aides, and caregivers.

Domestic service employees. The vacated rule states that agencies and other third party employers may no longer claim the overtime pay exemption for live-in domestic service workers. Live-in domestic service workers who are solely or jointly employed by a third party would earn at least federal minimum wage plus overtime under the rule.

According to the DOL, live-in domestic service workers who live in the employer's home permanently or for an extended period of time and are employed by an individual, family, or household are not entitled to overtime pay, but they must earn at least federal minimum wage.

The DOL's rule states that employers of live-in domestic service workers may enter into agreements to exclude certain time from compensable hours worked, such as sleep time, meal time, and other periods of complete freedom from work duties. These employers must maintain an accurate work records and may require live-in domestic service employees to record and submit their hours worked to the employer.

Companionship services. The job functions that are considered exempt "companionship services" would be more narrowly defined by the revised regulations, if they become effective. "Companionship services" would be defined as fellowship and protection.

According to the DOL, "fellowship" would mean to engage the person receiving services in social, physical, and mental activities. "Protection" would mean to be present with the person receiving services in his or her home or to accompany the person when outside of the home to monitor the person's safety and well-being.

The DOL states that examples of fellowship and protection would include conversation, reading, games, crafts, and accompanying the person on walks, on errands, to appointments, or to social events.

In Fact Sheet 79A, the DOL stated that the term "companionship services" would also include the provision of care, when the care is provided attendant to and in conjunction with the companionship services, and is no more than 20 percent of the hours worked each week. The provision of care means assisting the person with:

- Activities of Daily Living (ADLs) such as dressing, grooming, feeding, bathing, toileting and transferring; and
- Instrumental Activities of Daily Living (IADLs) which are tasks that enable a person to live independently at home, such as meal preparation, driving, light housework, managing finances, assistance with the physical taking of medications, and arranging medical care.

Employers should note that companionship services would not include household work, such as making dinner or doing laundry for the entire family. Doing household work means that an employee would lose the exemption under the Home Care Final Rule and be entitled to minimum wage and overtime.
