INDEPENDENCE AT HOME DEMONSTRATION – Post Acute Care Innovation!

Thursday March 15th, 2012 by D Jones Independence at Home Demonstration

Where Health Care is Headed

The CMS Innovation Center will release multiple opportunities to demonstrate better care, lower costs and managing health outside of traditional brick and mortar establishments. Just recently they released "Independence at Home Demonstration", a model program that will surely affect outpatient services and new wave 'home health'.

On Dec. 21, 2011, CMS released a call for applications for this new project and encouraged medical practices to test effectiveness of delivering primary care services in the home for Medicare beneficiaries with multiple chronic conditions. These comprehensive services are to focus on timely, appropriate care that improves quality of life while lowering costs; preferably by decreasing the need for care at institutional settings.

This project will also test "whether home-based care can reduce the need for hospitalization, improve patient and caregiver satisfaction and lead to better health and lower costs to Medicare," per the CMS announcement. <http://mediserve.com/blog/independence-at-home-demonstration-where-health-care-is-headed/>

Texas Department of Aging and Disability Services

Subject: Information Letter No. 12-33 - Required use of the Electronic Visit Verification (EVV) System in Regions 2 and 4 where participation was mandatory effective February 1, 2012.

The information contained in this letter is applicable only to providers in Regions 2 and 4 that were placed under the requirement to use the Electronic Visit Verification (EVV) system effective February 1, 2012. The Department of Aging and Disability Services (DADS) has determined that for the months of February and March 2012, the agency will accept the use of paper timesheets as a back-up to the use of EVV to document attendant time worked. While DADS does expect providers to have begun using the EVV system to document service delivery effective February 1, 2012, for the months of February and March 2012, paper timesheets will also be accepted to demonstrate compliance with agency rules and contract provisions. DADS is providing this flexibility to allow providers an opportunity to gain familiarity with the use of the EVV system before being potentially subject to sanctions for being unable to provide required documentation of time worked solely based on records in the EVV system.

Results of February 2012 Survey on Medicaid Funded Long Term Services and Supports
Consumer Directed Personal Care Services

Overview

In response to requests for assistance by two members, the National Association of States United for Aging and Disabilities (NASUAD) sent a survey to all states on February 3, 2012, asking for information about Medicaid funded Long-Term Services and Supports.

Methodology

An online survey instrument sent to all states included 30 questions focusing on three topics: 1) consumer-directed services and related processes; 2) assessments, reassessments and care plans; and 3) case management. A total of 16 states responded, with four filling out separate surveys for multiple programs. The 16 states provided information about 27 programs.

Because the topics of the survey were diverse, the results will be presented in three separate summaries. This summary focuses on the first topic—consumer directed services and related processes. Throughout the summary, when a percent is shown, it is based on the respondents and is not a percent of the total number of states.
