Notes

Consumers Wanted: For an Employment Information Bridge to work it requires traffic to flow in both directions. If you are in a Consumer Directed Personal Assistance Program, you will eventually need to find a new Home Care Worker. And up to now you may have relied upon Friends, Family, an Agency or you may have chosen to put your own advertisement on the Internet (See the list of Internet resources on the PCA Employment Agency page of this newsletter). Therefore, to help you find the PCA Candidate of your choice, I urge you, to do everything you ordinarily do, to consider an Internet resource and to try www.ConsumerDirectedServices.com. Finally, if you try Consumer Directed Services, please spread the word. Tell your friends and associates about this FREE service.

NCD Statement on Failed CRPD Ratification Vote in the Senate

WASHINGTON, DC: The Chairman of the National Council on Disability (NCD), an independent federal agency, expressed his deep disappointment that the United States Senate fell short of the votes needed to pass the resolution for ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD).

Yesterday, the United States had an opportunity to join more than 120 countries in a unified commitment to protect the rights of people with disabilities around the globe. It is deeply disappointing the Senate chose not to do so at this time. The CRPD was conceived with the same goals as the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA): to empower individuals with disabilities to achieve economic self-sufficiency, independent living, and inclusion and integration into all aspects of society,” said Jonathan Young, NCD Chairman. Through the development phase of the treaty and our support throughout the process, NCD has proudly encouraged the adoption of the same protections Americans with disabilities enjoy because of the ADA to other nations worldwide.

Almost one decade ago, the National Council on Disability kicked off U.S. disability community consideration of an international treaty by publishing a White Paper titled "Understanding the Role of an International Convention on the Human Rights of People with Disabilities." Since that time, NCD has published numerous documents and reports in support of the development, signature and ratification of the CRPD.

It is devastating that the Senate did not take this leap forward with the same bipartisan effort the community had with the ADA in advancing the quality of life for people with disabilities in the U.S. and worldwide, but NCD will continue to recommend ratification of this historic treaty to the 113th Congress, added Joan Durocher, NCD's General Counsel and Director of Policy.

About the National Council on Disability: NCD is an independent federal agency of 15 Presidentially-appointed Council Members and full-time professional staff, who advise the President, Congress and other federal agencies on disability policy, programs, and practices.

Ken Stewart

Call me a Pollyanna, but I don't agree with the NCD that the Senate vote was "devastating". Only time will tell, but I predict that many of those voting against ratification will want to prove that they are not anti-disabilities but simply pro-national U.S. sovereignty. It has been noted that this convention would have done nothing at all to improve disabilities rights in the U.s.. It is hoped however that it will help in many of the 126 nations which have already ratified this convention to improve their own posture on disabilities rights, currently below the quality of our disabilities rights here.

United Nations conventions have a spotty record at best. I recall one instance a few years ago. More than one hundred nations signed on to a treaty, about the environment perhaps?, and then years later, only one nation's representative when he got back home from the international session, was able to achieve ratification!

Philip Bennett

Ken, you can't ignore the fact that failure to ratify CRPD is a major embarrassment to the USA. And I believe it would have improved the lives of people with disabilities by creating an accessibility race. Because London's taxis are accessible, there would be added pressure on NY's taxi industry to catch up. I think the USA owes the rest of the world an apology.

Ed Litcher

I agree with Philip, I think that the failure to ratify the CRPD is an international embarrassment. If the United States wishes to play a leadership role in the world community, they should have signed this treaty, because it would have told the world that we truly believe what we say about human rights.
